INTRODUCTION.

This Code has been compiled primarily for the talking machine trade and can be utilized to advantage in telegraphing for machines, records, supplies, etc., from foreign countries or distant points in the United States.

Special attention has been paid to a complete listing of the various parts of the talking machine, assembled and separate, which will be a valuable source of information.

The publicity ordinarily entailed in telegraphing is prevented by the use of this code. Secrecy is sometimes desired in quoting terms or inquiring as to the financial standing of another. Absolute secrecy is possible under the plan herein adopted in this code when correspondents adopt readings which they specifically agree upon.

The value of this code will be seen at a glance. We will suppose that a dealer in London wishes to telegraph to New York for five thousand records, and desires to know how soon he may expect the goods, etc. Turning to the index, he finds the heading "Records," and from the sentences under this heading compiles the following telegram:

"Smith, New York."

"Impotent Inglobe."

"Geram.'

Which is translated by the receiver as follows:

"Smith, New York."

"If I place an order with you for the following number of records, how soon will you guarantee to deliver the same? If you cannot deliver all at one shipment, in what instalments will you deliver them, and how often? Five thousand assorted records." "Geram."

By this method the party telegraphing has sent a message of forty-seven words at an expense of only $1.25 (five words), which otherwise, without the use of the code, would have necessitated an expenditure of $11.75 (forty-seven words).

The question will naturally arise: "Will the party I wish to communicate with have a copy of this code to translate my message?" In reply to this question, the author of this volume positively assures the trade that every Talking Machine Company (of any consequence) in the entire world will receive copies of this code within sixty days after its publication.

Users of this code will notice that it is arranged differently from the ordinary code, being divided into two parts.

Part I., devoted to buying, selling, shipping and ordering records, machines, supplies, etc., etc.

Part II., devoted to listing the machines, supplies, appliances, attachments, etc., in most frequent demand and a complete list of each and every part of the various machines.

Part. II. has been arranged so as to be of special advantage to users in distant countries, enabling them to prefix "Un" or add "ing" to the code words to designate an additional sentence. (See Introduction, Part II.)

SUGGESTIONS.

If you cannot find the exact sentence you wish under the heading "Ship" try "Send" or words of similar meaning.

It is impossible to compile a code mentioning all articles or "schemes" that are continually being put on the market. If you do not find the article you want listed in this code, it is not an article of practical use or value in the Talking Machine Trade at the time of going to press of this edition, June 1, 1898—that is, in the branch to which this edition is adapted.

All the principal Talking Machine Companies have a registered cable name (or address) which insures the delivery of all cablegrams, so addressed, as quickly as if it bore their address in full. It is advisable for parties intending to cable frequently to register their name and address. Information in this respect can be obtained at any telegraph office.

Write your messages plainly; dot the "i's," cross the "t's" and be very careful of your "u's" and "n's." This is very essential, as an "u" misunderstood as an "n" would cause much trouble and expense. Write the body of your message thus:

"Knives Gazeful Gladness Handful."

commencing each word with a capital letter.

In sending a plain message (i. e., not in cipher) to parties who habitually use this code when communicating with you, avoid using any of the code words in this system as a misunderstanding might arise therefrom.

Blanks are to be supplied in the order of their occurrence by immediately succeeding code words.

When a —— occurs in a sentence, the word or words supplying such blank should immediately follow the code word of that sentence. If there are two or more blanks, it is understood that the words to supply such blanks follow the code word in the order of their occurence;—thus blanks for the following sentence:

"Acorutos —— says that he (or they) can get —— per cent. discount from ——. Is this a fact? Answer quickly."

Would be filled out thus:—

"Acorutos Smith Despuo Jones"

Which would mean: Smith says that he can get forty per cent. discount from Jones. Is this a fact? Answer quickly."

The repeated and unnecessary specification of the pronouns he, her, she, they, them, etc., would encumber this volume greatly. The correct pronouns can usually be supplied from the context of the message (according to circumstances); therefore the said pronouns will not be used expletively in this edition. For instance:

Mr. Smith, in wishing to telegraph Mr. Brown the following: "I have been referred to you for information," etc., would be obliged to use "We have been referred to you," etc. Mr. Brown must of course understand that if the message is from Mr. Smith personally he means I; if from Mr. Smith, representing his firm, Smith & Co, he would mean We.

RULES AND REGULATIONS.

The rules and regulations which govern the treatment of "Cable" messages are prepared by the telegraph authorities of Europe for their guidance in international traffic. The maximum length of a chargeable word, the use of "Code" words, "Cipher Combinations," "Figures" and "Letters," and the languages from which codes may be compiled, with other requirements, are fixed by these rules; and to these the Companies which transmit cable messages to and from America (those to and from Mexico exempted) must necessarily conform.*

This code has been compiled in accordance with the rules and regulations mentioned above. The code words have been carefully arranged in accordance with the decisions of the recent International Telegraph Conference of Paris, in reference to preconcerted language, and contains only code words extracted from the official vocabulary.

* The rules and regulations which govern the treatment of domestic messages are prepared by the various companies in the different countries. Each company makes the rules which govern domestic messages transmitted over their own lines. These rules vary in minor details, but every company accepts code or cipher messages providing the words or figures used are derived from modern languages, and are not altered contrary to their usage in the language from which they are selected. (See  next page.)

INFORMATION FOR CABLING.

Every address must contain at least two words, and must be sufficient to secure delivery.

All that the sender of a message writes for transmission to his correspondent is counted and charged for.

Messages may be written in any language that can be expressed in Roman letters. They may be in plain or secret language. Secret language may be sub-divided, and each of these—i. e., plain, code and cipher—may be employed alone or conjointly in the same message.

Plain language is that which is composed of words forming intelligible phrases, in one or more or the languages authorized for international telegraphic correspondence.

Code language is that which is composed of words not forming intelligible phrases. Code words must not be longer than ten letters each. They must be taken from one or more of the following languages, viz.: English, German, Spanish, French, Dutch, Italian, Portuguese and Latin. Code words taken from other languages are not allowed.

Cipher language is that which is formed of groups, or of a series of figures having a secret meaning.

The employment (except as commercial signs) of single letters, or groups of letters, to convey secret meaning is not allowed.

Combinations or alterations of words contrary to the usage of a language are not allowed.

In plain messages (words containing neither code words nor cipher groups of figures), words of fifteen letters, or less, are each counted as a word. Words of over fifteen letters are counted at the rate of fifteen letters to a word, plus one for any excess.

 The following countries decline to receive telegrams in preconcerted language: Bosnia-Herzegovina, Bulgaria, Roumania, Servia, Turkey. In the following countries they are admitted only under certain restrictions: Austria, Hungary.

In messages composed entirely of code words each word is counted at the rate of ten letters to a word.

In messages composed only of cipher groups of figures each five is counted as a word, plus one for any excess.

Plain words used in code messages are counted the same as code words.

A sender of a message may secure its repetition by paying one-fourth more than the regular tolls.

FIGURES INSTEAD OF CODE WORDS.

It is sometimes advisable to use groups of figures instead of code words in telegraphing from foreign countries, especially where a message is transmitted through different countries.

To make this possible, this code is supplied with a scale (uniformly applicable to all pages *) which can be used as a key to the various lines of sentences comprising the body of each page. This scale may be matched to the lines of the pages forming a temporary numbering of the said lines.

Parties wishing to use figures in telegraphing can do so, as follows:—Join the page number with the line number, combining the same in one group, writing page number first; thus:

Tenth page, ninth line, would be written 1009 (†)

* The scale mentioned above can be applied to all pages excepting those containing tables. When using matter from the following pages (which contain tables and two or three lines of code words) use code words instead of figures Pages 40, 52, 53, 61, 62, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 151, 152, 153, 154, 155, 156, 157, 158, 159, 160, 161, 162, 163, 164, 165, 166, and 167.

† When writing a line number from 1 to 9 (inclusive) prefix a "0", thus: 01, 02, 03, etc. (See margin of scale)

In translating messages from groups of figures (using the above mentioned scale) it is understood that the LAST TWO figures in each group refer to a line on a certain page, said page being designated by the PRECEDING FIGURES in the same group.

Examples:—

Example:—

"1008. 1028" would read:

"What price can you quote me on the following number of blanks? Forty barrels."

Be careful in writing your mesage to use a dash or period after each group, thus:

2525. 2506. 2414. 2632.

OR

2525 — 2506 — 2414 — 2632

Although this code has been compiled principally for cabling, it can be used advantageously in domestic telegraphing.

THE HUNTING TALKING MACHINE TELEGRAPHIC CODE

Copyrighted 1898.

COMPILED BY RUSSELL HUNTING.

PART II.

EDISON PHONOGRAPH SECTION.

COMPLETE LIST OF PHONOGRAPHS, PARTS, SUPPLIES AND ACCESSORIES.

For Questions, Answers, Directions, Etc., in reference to Buying, Selling and Shipping the articles mentioned in this section, see Part I of this Code.

NOTICE.

The most common phrase in commercial telegraphing is probably "Send me (or us) as soon as possible the following goods," or a similar sentence of the same meaning. The prefix "Un" aud the suffix "ing" have been selected to designate this sentence (when added to the code words) in Part II of this system. They can be used to advantage as specified above, by combining them with the code words which designate the article or goods for which a person wishes to send. It is therefore understood that "Un" prefixed to and combined with a code word marked † means—"Send me (or us) as soon as possible the following articles (or goods)," said articles or goods being designated by the code word which follows the "Un", but which is combined with it and written as one word.

It is also understood that "ing" added to a code word marked * means: "Send me (or us) as soon as possible the preceding article or goods"—said article or goods being designated by the code word which precedes the "ing," but which is combined with it and written as one word.

Examples:—

"Become," which designates "Governor Springs for Spring Motor Phonograph," when written "Unbecome" would mean "Send me (or us) as soon as possible Governor Springs for Spring Motor Phonograph."

"Bicker," which designates "Five Class 'M' Electric Phonographs," when written "Bickering," would mean "Five Class 'M' Electric Phonographs. Send me (or us) as soon as possible the preceding goods."

The prefix "Un" and the suffix "ing" can be added to a limited number of words only, and care should be taken to combine them with the code words in Part II. only: prefixing "Un" to words marked † only, and adding "ing" to those marked * only.

THE HUNTING TALKING MACHINE TELEGRAPHIC CODE

Copyrighted 1898.

COMPILED BY RUSSELL HUNTING.

PART II.

GRAPHOPHONE SECTION.

COMPLETE LIST OF GRAPHOPHONES, PARTS, SUPPLIES AND ACCESSORIES.

For Questions, Answers, Directions, Etc., in reference to Buying, Selling and Shipping the articles mentioned in this section, see Part I of this Code.

NOTICE.

The most common phrase in commercial telegraphing is probably "Send me (or us) as soon as possible the following goods," or a similar sentence of the same meaning. The prefix "Un" aud the suffix "ing" have been selected to designate this sentence (when added to the code words) in Part II of this system. They can be used to advantage as specified above, by combining them with the code words which designate the article or goods for which a person wishes to send. It is therefore understood that "Un" prefixed to and combined with a code word marked † means—"Send me (or us) as soon as possible the following articles (or goods)," said articles or goods being designated by the code word which follows the "Un", but which is combined with it and written as one word.

It is also understood that "ing" added to a code word marked * means: "Send me (or us) as soon as possible the preceding article or goods"—said article or goods being designated by the code word which precedes the "ing," but which is combined with it and written as one word.

Examples:—

"Joyful," which designates "Four Type 'BX' Eagle Graphophones," when written "Unjoyful" would mean "Send me (or us) as soon as possible four Type 'BX' Eagle Graphophones."

"Follow,"* which designates "Governor Springs for 'A' Graphophone," when written "Following" would mean "Governor Springs for 'A' Graphophone. Send me (or us) as soon as possible the preceding articles."

The prefix "Un" and the suffix "ing" can be added to a limited number of words only, and care should be taken to combine them with the code words in Part II. only: prefixing "Un" to words marked † only, and adding "ing" to those marked * only.

Cabinets (Carrying Cases) are always furnished with the following Graphophones:

Types "BX," "BXP," "A," "AE," "AI," "AN," "AT," "C," "CE" and "CI."

A cabinet (carrying case) is always furnished and shipped with each of the above machines unless otherwise ordered. (See page 229.) Cabinets are also furnished (unless otherwise ordered) with Type "AS" or "ES" Automatic Coin-in-the-Slot Graphophones, but it is necessary to designate the style of cabinet desired, as both types are furnished with either large or small cabinets.

PART II.

BETTINI ATTACHMENT SECTION.

COMPLETE LIST OF PARTS, SUPPLIES AND ACCESSORIES.

For Questions, Answers, Directions, Etc., in reference to Buying, Selling and Shipping the articles mentioned in this section, see Part I of this Code.

NOTICE.

The most common phrase in commercial telegraphing is probably "Send me (or us) as soon as possible the following goods," or a similar sentence of the same meaning. The prefix "Un" aud the suffix "ing" have been selected to designate this sentence (when added to the code words) in Part II of this system. They can be used to advantage as specified above, by combining them with the code words which designate the article or goods for which a person wishes to send. It is therefore understood that "Un" prefixed to and combined with a code word marked † means—"Send me (or us) as soon as possible the following articles (or goods)," said articles or goods being designated by the code word which follows the "Un", but which is combined with it and written as one word.

It is also understood that "ing" added to a code word marked * means: "Send me (or us) as soon as possible the preceding article or goods"—said article or goods being designated by the code word which precedes the "ing," but which is combined with it and written as one word.

Examples:—

"Waited," which designates "Sapphire Reproducing Ball with Holder," when written "Unwaited" would mean "Send me as soon as possible Sapphire Reproducing Ball with Holder."

"Vinegar," which designates "Aluminum Diaphragm for Reproducer," when written "Vinegaring" would mean "Aluminum Diaphragm for Reproducer. Please send me as soon as possible the preceding article.

The prefix "Un" and the suffix "ing" can be added to a limited number of words only, and care should be taken to combine them with the code words in Part II. only: prefixing "Un" to words marked † only, and adding "ing" to those marked * only.

PART II.

GRAM-O-PHONE SECTION.

COMPLETE LIST OF PARTS, SUPPLIES AND ACCESSORIES.

For Questions, Answers, Directions, Etc., in reference to Buying, Selling and Shipping the articles mentioned in this section, see Part I of this Code.

NOTICE.

The most common phrase in commercial telegraphing is probably "Send me (or us) as soon as possible the following goods," or a similar sentence of the same meaning. The prefix "Un" aud the suffix "ing" have been selected to designate this sentence (when added to the code words) in Part II of this system. They can be used to advantage as specified above, by combining them with the code words which designate the article or goods for which a person wishes to send. It is therefore understood that "Un" prefixed to and combined with a code word marked † means—"Send me (or us) as soon as possible the following articles (or goods)," said articles or goods being designated by the code word which follows the "Un", but which is combined with it and written as one word.

It is also understood that "ing" added to a code word marked * means: "Send me (or us) as soon as possible the preceding article or goods"—said article or goods being designated by the code word which precedes the "ing," but which is combined with it and written as one word.

Examples:—

"Watery," which designates "Diaphragm for Sound Box," when written "Unwatery" would mean "Send me as soon as possible Diaphragm for Sound Box."

"Waylay," which designates "Thumb Screws for Sound Box Needle Arm," when written "Waylaying" would mean "Thumb Screws for Sound Box Needle Arm. Please send me as soon as possible the preceding articles."

SUPPLEMENT

TO

TALKING MACHINE TELEGRAPHIC CODE.

Copyrighted 1898.

SPECIALLY NUMBERED CODE WORDS.

To be used in conjunction with the special tables included herewith.

EXPLANATION.

For the benefit of dealers and manufacturers who handle or manufacture a special line of talking-machine supplies, not listed in the general code, this supplement of nine hundred and ninety-eight specially-numbered code words (which specially-numbered code words are not used in the general code) is supplied together with the proper special tables.

The blanks in these tables may be filled in by correspondents to suit their various requirements. Each table is used as follows:

Find in the list on the left of the table the article or one of the conditions desired, then read across on a straight line to the right to that number which has the quantity or other condition desired specified in the list along the top of the table. The number thus found is the number needed to designate the code word in the specially-numbered list.

For instance, if a party wishes to telegraph the conditions stipulated by number 230 he telegraphs the word "Abietate," which word is number 230 in the specially-numbered list. When the code word is received, the recipient looks through his list of words and discovers that the word received is number 230. He then looks at the table and reads the conditions stipulated by number 230 in the lists at the left and top of table.

If more than one table is required by the volume of business to be provided for, each separate table may be designated by a special code word agreed upon by correspondents. (See paragraph in upper left hand corner of table.)

SCALE

To be used in Compiling and Translating Messages in Cipher.

Match this line against line at top of page.

IT is sometimes advisable to use groups of figures (instead of code words) in telegraphing from foreign countries, especially where a message is transmitted through various countries.

To make this possible this code is supplied with this scale (uniformly applicable to all pages, excepting those mentioned below*) which can be used as a key to the various lines of sentences comprising the body of each page.

This scale may be matched to the lines of the page forming a temporary numbering of the said lines.

Tenth page, ninth line, would be written 1009. (†)

In translating messages from groups of figures (using this scale) it is understood that the LAST TWO figures in each group refer to a line on a certain page; said page being designated by the PRECEDING FIGURES in the same group.

Examples:—Page 101, line 3, is written 10103,

Thus:—"1008. 1028." would read:

"What price can you quote me on the following number of blanks? Forty barrels."

Be careful in writing your message to use a dash or a period after each group thus:—

2525. 2529. 2632. 2506. or 2525—2529—2632—2506.

* This scale can be applied to all pages except those containing tables. When using matter from the following pages (which contain tables) USE CODE WORDS INSTEAD OF FIGURES.

Pages 40, 52, 53, 61, 62, 104 to 108 inclusive and 151 to 167 inclusive.

† When writing a line number from 1 to 9 (inclusive) prefix a "0," thus:—01, 02, 03 etc. (see margin of scale.)
